He received a classical education, was graduated at Harvard law school in 1854, was admitted to the bur in 1856, and practiced in New Orleans. When the civil war began he entered the confederate army. He resumed practice in New Orleans at the close of the war and was elected a member of the Legislature prior to the reconstruction acts, and was one was elected a member of the Legislature prior to the reconstruction acts, and was one of the committee sent to Washington to confer with President Johnson on Louisiana affairs. He was a member of the State Honse of Representatives in 1872, and was elected a member of the State Honse of Representatives in 1872, and was elected a member of the State Senate for four years in 1874. He was chosen to the United States Senate as a Democrat in January, 1876, to fill the vacancy which it was maintained existed by failure of the Senate to give the seat to P. B. S. Pinch-back, who had been elected in 1873. Only three Republicans took part in the election, on the ground that no vacancy existed, and Mr. Eustis was not given his seat till late in 1877, serving till 1873. He then became professor of civil law in the University of Louisiana, but in 1884 was again elected to the United States Senate for the full term of six years.

Wade Hampton is of an old South Carolina family. He was born in 1818, was educated at the university of his State and studied law. He served in the South Carolina Legislature in early life. He was a Contederate officer of distinction. At the battle of Gettysburg he was wounded three times. He eventually obtained the rank of lieutenant-general. In 1878 he was chosen Governor of South Carolina. In 1878 he was chosen Governor of South Carolina. In 1878 he was cleeted to the United States Senate. General Hampton has always been a conservative Democrat. Even before the war his views were those of a national rather than of a secession tendency. Mr. Hawkins, the new United States marshal for the district of Indiana, lives at Sullivan, Sullivan acounty. This is his lirst apearance in State politics. He has been sheriff of his county, and he has the reputation of getting in politics "anything he goes after." About the middle of the last legislative session he appeared in Indianapolis, and it was quietly given out that he was the coming narshal. Up to the time of The News's mention of his candidacy nothing had been known of him. Si Sheerin was his friend, however, and a host of politicians came to his support. He is a man of small stature and nervous temperament. His success is largely due to his supperior social abilities, which are said to be of a high order.

Frank P. Burke, the appointee for United States district attorney, has been practicing law at Jeffersonville. He was a member of the State Senate in 1889 and 1891, and has been active in State politics and in the lobby ever since he entered the Legislature. Wirle a member of the State Senate he made himself unpopular with the organized laboring men of the State, by opposing the enactment of a coemployes' liability act. The "blue book," prepared by the executive committee of the unions of the Stale, was largely directed against him, and the laboring men have claimed that they made it impossible for him to return to the Legislature.

THE KNOCK-OUT OF KERN. Uncle Jason, Brown Is Feeling Pretty Cheerful To-Day.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] Washington, D. C., March 20 .- The or iginal Cleveland men are asking to-day what they are on earth for; they are sorry that they did not follow the exam-ple of Gil Shanklin and return home. The nomination of Frank Burke for district attorney which was sent to the Senate to-day, was a great "knock-out" for the 90 per cent. element. Congressman Bynum took a party of friends and went to the Senate. On the way he told them that Kern would certainly be nominated. His surprise and the surprise of the others may well be imagined when the announcement of Burke's agmination came in. Congress-man Jason B. Brown is the happiest man in Washington. He has contended all along that Burke would be nominated. It must he admitted however, that the rest of the Indiana contingenthere were hardly so good prophets. Kern's nomination was generally expected. This morning Senator Voorhees had indorsed Mr. Burke, and it is believed in the last hours put in some very strong strokes for him in order to make the MORTON AS A REFORMER. The Secretary of Agriculture and His Diverting Joke.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.]

WASHINGTON, D. C., March 20 .- The new Secretary of Agriculture, has shown an aptitude for disposing of minor Republican officeolders that promises to be popular among the rank and file of the Democratic party Last week an order was issued cutting down the force of meat inspectors where Uncle Jerry Rusk had appointed 50 per cent. The ostensible purpose of this decapitation was to reduce the force so that it would conform more nearly to the amount of work to be accomplished. There was considerable complaint, and this morning a Democratic Congressman, who was talking to Mr. Morton, ventured to ask him if he was really out for reform, or what was the purpose of cutting down the force of meat inspectors. The Congressman gave

SENATE REORGANIZATION.

The Republicans Give Warning to the Democrats in a Caucus field To-Day. WASHINGTON, March 20 .- The first steps of the Republicans of the Senate as a body, looking to the prevention of the reorganization of the elective officers of the Senate, were taken at a caucus held this morning. There was a very large attendance, almost every Republican Senator being present.
Mr. Sherman presided. Speeches were made by Senators Manderson, Hoar, Cullom, Chandler and others. It was announced that the Democratic caucus committee which will report to a Democratic caucus to be held to nource was supposed to here. been at work upon a plan for the reorganization of the elective officers. The Senators who spoke said that this was in violation of all the precedents, that the Senate had never in its history effected such an organization at an executive session, and that the zation at an executive session, and that to attempt it now would be to the detriment of the working force and cause great injury to the public business.

There was not a dissenting voice to this

There was not a dissenting voice to this proposition and it was agreed that Mr. Sherman chairman of the caucus, should wait upon Mr. Gorman who holds a similar position in the Democratic cancus and notify him that any attempt to reorganize the Senate at this session would be very distasteful to the Republicans. Beyond this formal protest nothing was decided upon. There will be no opposition to the election of Mr. Harris as president protempore, and Mr. Manderson will leave that place without a word of protest. The committee clerks have word of protest. The committee clerks have also been changed, as have the committees, and that having been accomplished, the Reand that having been accomplished, the Republicans say the reorganization is complete so far as it can go this session.

If the Democrats persist in seeking to reorganize the elective officers, or if there is any indication of such an effort on the floor of the Senate, the Republicans say they will quote from the records of the session of 1881, when Demograts appared they affort on the part of the publicans say they will quote from the records of the session of 1881, when Democrats opposed any effort on the part of the Republicans, who finally abandoned any intention in that direction they may have bail If this is not sufficient, another caucus will be held and the question whether or not fillibustering, as it was indulged in by the Democrats in 1881, shall be taken up as a weapon at this session by the Republicans will be passed upon. A prominent Republican as a weapon at this session by the Republicans will be passed upon. A prominent Republican who took an active part in the caucus, stated this morning that he believed the Democrats would heed the formal protest, but if they did not speak they buts if they did not, upon them, and not the Republicans, must rest the responsi-bility of what should follow. The Repub-licans say they have the power to prevent reorganization and if the pinch comes they will use it to as good effect as their oppo-nents did twelve years ago.

OPERA-HOUSE RIOT CASES.

Beginning of the Trial of the Conspirators at Lafayette.

(Special to The Indianapolis News.) LAFAYETTE, March 20 .- What are known as the opera-house riot cases were called of meat inspectors. The Congressman gave it as his opinion that while there might be more inspectors than were necessary to accomplish the work at present that the time would soon come when they would be needed. The new secretary took the Democratic Congressman into his confidence and informed him that the whole thing was a very clever joke. Secretary Morton said that his predecessor, Mr. Rusk had stuffed the meat-inspection service with a lot of rank Republicans, and if permitted to take their regular course into political oblivion, many months would necessarily elapse before they would drop out. Secretary Morton said that he conceived a speedier method of disposing of them by reducing the force one-half, now and then restoring it in a week or so, when the new places could be filled with Democrats. this morning. Bartholomew J. Murphy, one prejudice against the Roman Catholic church, and finally what his party politics are. This latter question the court invariably rules out. A number of men have been excused from the box. Some stated that they had religious prejudices; some declared that they would not give a Catholic's testimony the same weight as that of members of their own church. One hundred talesmen have been drawn from which to choose a jury. The court-room is crowded. Professor Rudolph is here. He was delivering his anti-Catholic lecture in the opera-house at the time the riot was started, for the apparent purpose of assassinating him. One shot struck Professor Rudolph in the abdomen, making a slight wound.

HOPE FINALLY ABANDONED

MONDAY EVENING, MARCH 20, 1893.

THE PREIGHT STEAMER NARONIC HAS CERTAINLY BEEN LOST.

Her Life-Boat Seen Floating-Various Conjectures as to Her Fate-The Sarnia Is Safe-The Cause of Her Long Delay.

BREMEN, March 20.—After long continued anxiety regarding the late of the White Star Line freight steamer Naronic, which sailed from Liverpool, February 11 for New York, and which has not linee been heard of, intelligence has been received showing beyond any doubt that the vessel is lost. The British steamer Coventry, Captain Wilson, from Fernandina, February 10, arrived in this port to-day. She reports that at 2 o'clock in the morning of March 4, when in latitude 42° north, longitude 46° west, she passed a lifeboat painted white, bearing the name "Natonic." The boat was floating keel upward. At 2 in the afternoon of the same day another lifeboat from the Naronic was passed. This boat gave evidence of having eacountered heavy weather. The mast and oars of the lifeboat had been lashed together, and attached to the painter and then thrown overboard as a sea anchor to keep the boat's head up to the wind. Judging from appearances neither of the boats had been long adrift. The position of the drifting boats was about south by west of Sable island on the banks of Newfoundland. There is a chance that the occupants of the boats were picked up

Another Report From the Coventry. LIVERPOOL, March 20.-Officials of the White Star Line Company here have re-ceived the full report of the steamer Coventry, which arrived at Bremen to-day. They state that their advices show that the last lifeboat of the Naronie passed by the Cov-entry was recently occupied by a portion of the Naronic's crew, and they expressed the hope that the occupants had been picked up by a passing vessel. They also expressed the hope that the occupants of the other boats had been rescued. All doubt as to the fate of the Naronic has been dispelled by the sighting of her lifeboats. That she is now at the bottom of the ocean can not be now at the bottom of the ocean can not be disputed, but the cause of the disaster is, of course, still a matter of conjecture.

It may be, judging from the latitude and longitude in which the boats were seen, that the steamer struck either a derelict or an iceberg, though it is still rather early in the season for ice to be adrift so far south as the banks. It is hoped that the mystery of the loss of the steamer will soon be cleared up by the landing at some port of members of her crew. A vessel which passed Deal today signaled that she had on board eleven shipwrecked people, and the White Star officials say there is a strong probability that they are part of the crew of the Naronic. The arrival of this vessel is eaverly awaited, as, should the shipwrecked persons on board be from the Naronic, all conjecture as to the causes that led to the foundering of the steamer will be removed.

The Sarvia Is Safe.

The Sarnia 1s Safe. HALIFAX, N. S., March 20 .- The Furness line steamer Madura, thrreen days from London, arrived here early yesterday morn-ing. She reports on Thursday evening, March 16, in lattitude 45° 35' north, longitude 56° 32' west, she sighted a steamer on the starboard bow, showing signals of dis-tress. She ran within halling distance and found it was the Dominion line steamer Sarnia, nine days overdue at this port. The captain said his after crank shaft was broken, and asked the captain of the Madara to stand by tell daylight. The Madara remained till morning, when the Sarnia signaled that she expected to effect repairs by 4 p. m. on the same day. The captain of the Madura then asked if the steamer wanted to be towed in, but got no reply and the Maduia proceeded on her voyage. The Sarnia had her sea anchor out and was riding very easily. The Sarnia was then seventy-two miles south by west of St. then seventy-two miles south by west of St. Pierre, ten miles southwest of the edge of St. Pierre Bank and 300 miles east by north of Halifax. She had drifted northeast by east 234 miles since she was seen by the Dutch steamer American on the 11th.

At 9 o'clock last night it was announced from the signal station that the Sarnia and the Newfield were off this port and considerable excitement was caused thereby. The Sarnia, of course, had to anchor at quaranting for inspect on by health officers. The Sarnia, of course, had to anchor at quarantine for inspect on by health officers. The Newfield came on up and crowds assembled at the marine and fisheries wharf to get any news she had. The Newfield had sighted the disabled ship about noon and run down to her. Carrier pigeons were released at intervals from then till 5 o'clock, but they failed to reach their lofts. The Newfield and Sarnia, which arrived to-day, with some seven hundred people on board, ran into a severe storm. In the case of the latter the men were unable to remain on deck, so violent was the gale. The Sarnia will not come up to the city till to-day some time. The Sarnia's engineers, after working night and day, repaired the broken shaft so that the steamer took in her sea anchors at 5 o'clock Friday afternoon and went ahead under steam at about eight knots per hour, reaching here as eight knots per hour, reaching here as above stated. All of the seven hundred and odd passengers are well and well cared for, the ship's larder being ample for all their wants.

The Sarnia's officers say that the latitude and longitute given by the steamer American in her report at New York was wrong, the disabled vessel being two or three nundred miles from the position given by the American. The Sarnia is able to go ahead, American. The Sarnia is able to go ahead, but can not go astern, and therefore must anchor to stop, and tugs will be employed to bring her up to the city.

SITUATION AT TOLEDO.

Judge Rick's Attitude Toward The Strikers-The Outlook.

TOLEDO, O., March 20.-The strike situation here to-day is as follows: The Brother-hood engineers on the Lake Shore road on Saturday afternoon refused, one after another, to take out a train containing some other, to take out a train containing some Ann Arbor cars. The first one, whose reg ular run it was, walked into the round-house and declared his wish to leave the service of the company. No reason was assigned. The second one did the same thing, and so on until five had thus declined. Three firemen did the same. Then came an order, or notice, or proclamation, in some un known way, presumed to be from Chief Arthur, lifting the boycott on Ann Arbor cars. The fifth engineer consequently took the train out. The five men were arrested, brought before Judge Ricks, of the United States District Court, charged with violat-ing an order of that court, issued a week ago, directed to all railway companies, "their officers, agents and employes," restraining them from refusing to handle Ann Arbor freight. These men were released on their own recognizance in $200 bail until 3 this afternoon for trial. Much comment was created by Judge Rick's remarks to the men. The Judge did not say that men could be "compelled to work." He evidently referred to the action of the Ann Arbor engineers in abandoning their Ann Arbor engineers in abandoning their trains when the strike was ordered at way As the engineers on the Lake Shore on

As the engineers on the Lake Shore on Saturday left that company's service at the end of a division, his remarks could not have referred to them, but were a warning to the brotherhood in case a strike was precipitated on the Lake Shore, not to leave trains when they had once started with them until the end of the run was reached. The court also granted injunctions against each of the engineers and firemen of the Wheeling & Lake Erie road by name, against refusing to handle Ana Arbor freight. The order of Arthur suspending the boycott will, of course, prevent any further trouble with Ann Arbor cars until March 27, at least, the date on which Arthur and Sargent are cited to appear in Judge Ricks's court at the trial of the motion to make perpetual the temporary order restraining them from declaring a boycott on Ann Arbor freight. Mr. Arthur is also ordered to file with the court "the law, by-laws, rule or regulation of said law, by-laws, rule or regulation of said brotherhood requiring its members to re-fuse to handle cars of the Ann Arbor road."

CARLYLE HARRIS WILL DIE BY ELECTROCUTION IN MAY.

cenes In Recorder Smythe's Court This Morning-Harris Makes An Address To the Court-His Weak Physical State.

NEW YORK, March 20 .- Rarely, if ever, as there been so much excitement around the dark, grim building of the Court of deneral Sessions as there was this morning Carlyle W. Harris, after having exhausted every possible means to escape the penulty for the murder of his wife, was to be finally sentenced by Recorder Smythe. Interest in the case has been phenomenal. It was evi-denced this morning by the crowds which surrounded the court building. Extraordinary measures had been taken by the authorities to prevent the court-room being crowded. The ordinary entrances to the building were barred hard and fast. Big notices, reading "Closed," were put on the doors. The only way to get into the building was by the basement entrance on Chambers street. Two policemen and a clerk from the district attorney's office were stationed there, and no one was allowed to pass except newspaper men who were authenticated and persons bearing tickets of admission signed by the district attorney. After the visitor got inside the building he had to run the gauntlet of more officers to get into the room where Recorder Smythe sits. Notwithstanding all this the court room was crowded before 10 o'clock. A dense throng of men, boys and women, too, surrounded the building.

THE APPEARANCE OF HARRIS. A little before 10 o'clock a side door vas opened at the Tombs, four blocks away from the throng about the court-house. A slender young man, with pointed, close-trimmed beard, stepped forth, one wrist shackeled to the wrist of a deputy sheriff. Close behind was another deputy, and the biggest on the force. The young man was skin was sallow, his eyes large and sunken, and under them deep blue rings. And no wonder. The strain of anxiety the young man has been undergoing would reduce the vital forces of the strongest. The trio left the Leonard-street entrance to the Tombs. Crowds lined Center street, and to escape them the steriffs took Harris through the Department of Public Works Building and rushed him across Chambers street to the court. street to the court. Arriving at the court, Harris sat down in a remote corner, closely guarded by the deputy sheriffs. Despite the hurried trip from the Tombs, Harris was very pale and sank back in his chair as if utterly exhausted.

HARRIS AT THE BAR. At sharp 10 o'clock Recorder Smythe took the bench. There was a rustle of expectancy among the spectators. Harris leaned tor-ward and gazed intently at the magistrate who had declared against the young prisoner's last chance, in the courts, for life. Amid who had declared against the young prisoner's last chance, in the courts, for life. Amid silence so deep every sound outside could be distinctly heard, the Recorder wheeled slowly about in his chair until he faced the prisoner, and called, "Carlyle Harris to the bur." Harris arose with a start and walked unsteadily through the row of spectators up to the rail. District Attorney Nicoli, in a low voice, made the usual motion that sentence be passed. There was a silence for a moment when the district-attorney sat down. Then the Recorder, somewhat huskily, said: "Carlyle W. Harris, have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?"

Harris leaned both hands on the rail, bent forward and began to speak in tones so low that the deputies who stood close beside him on each side could not hear what he said, and leaned their heads to catch the he said, and leaned their heads to catch the

HARLIS'S ADDRESS TO THE COURT.

There was a slight buzz of whispering among the spectators, and Recorder Smythe's voice was again iffted, this tine harsh and commanding. He interrupted Harris. "Let every whisper cease," thundered. "'The man or woman who speaks will be ejected. This is too solemn a matter for idle chatter." The court-room was again as quiet as possible, and human inte, it seemed, hung heavy on the air, Harris began again. Just then the officers opened the door to let in two women. The door creaked and the women's kirts rustled. The nagistrate was aroused. "Let no one, man, woman or enild, whoever he or she may be, enter or leave the court-room," again thundered the Recorder. The or she may be, enter or leave the courtroom," again thundered the Recorder. The door was closed carefully. Three officers stood against it. The women shrank behind a group of men clustered around the door. Harris began again. The seene was dramatic in the extreme. Harris leaned his left hand on the rail and slightly swayed as he spoke, With effective gestures he waved his right arm, but although the spectators kept absolute silence and craned their necks to hear not one could catch a syllable of what the prisoner was saying for the five minutes that he talked.
Judge Martine sat on the bench alongside of Recorder Smythe. Although he leaned back in his chair negligently, he never once took his eyes off Harris, The Recorder's attitude was marked by every one. He sat holt upright, at times even leaned forward, and, with his left hand behind his ear, seemed to be painfully striving to hear what Harris said. He looked straight into Harris's eyes.
District Attorney Nicoll was surrounded by his entire staff of assistants.

Nearlyall his clerks were also in the courtroom. Superintendent of Police Byrnes was a marked figure. He stood within the rail and, like everyone else, listened with strained attention. Mrs. Harris, the prisoner's mother, was not to be seen. It was said that she had been persuaded by her son himself to stay away. He feared that the scene would be too much for her.
Among the spectators was Mr. Potts, the father of the girl whom Harris married and is convicted of having murdered. He sat well back and seemed to try to avoid appearing conspicuous.

Harris was evidently very weak. He swayed backward and forward as he spoke, and at times seemed to save himself from falling by clutching convulsively at the rail.
After the first ten minutes he grew stronger and at times seemed to save himself from falling by clutching convulsively at the rail. After the first ten minutes he grew stronger and his voice could be heard by those in his immediate vicinity. The spectators could only gather that Harris was speaking of the affidavits which were presented by the defense on the motion for a new trial. The first time that Harris's accents rang strong and clear was when he spoke of Dilworth Choate. With a suddenness that startled every one came the words: "There is one man for whom I have been looking around this court-room. I do not see him. He is Dilworth Choate, Dilworth Choate." He repeated the name with such scorn and bitterness that a shudder ran around the court-room. "Dilworth Choate, continued Harris. "Dilworth Choate, sneak and perjurer, newspaper outcast, the district attorney's tool." Harris continued to excorate Choate, but his voice fell. The young jail-bleached prisoner's viality was at low ebb. It was this way all through Harris's most remarkable speech. For minutes at a time his voice was so low that no one could hear him, and then he would burst forth with some dramatic exclamation that penetrated to the furthest recess of the court-room.

A big bundle of notes lay on the table to Harris's right, in front of lawyer Howe. Harris occasionally turned and referred to them. There was a dramatic moment after Harris had spoken of the affidavit of juror Mason that he (the juror) would have given a different verdict if the evidence presented by the recent affidavits had been before him at the time of the trial. Harris turned to Mr. Howe, his counsel, and bending slightly to-

"He would better have gone before," re-"He would better have gone before," remarked Harris.

Mr. Wellman, after a little, came into the court-room again by the public entrance, but did not go within the rail. A most affecting scene occurred when Harris turned to Mr. Howe, and in broken accents, said: "Mr. Howe, you know what a poor man I am, that I have not and can not repay your devotion. I want you to take this, my dearest possession, and keep it ever."

As he spoke Harris drew an envelope from his poeket and handed it to Mr. Howe, with these words: "Take it, Mr. Howe. It was Helen's last gilt to me; take it, with hee love." As he turned away, to face the Recorder again, Harris sobbed twice, convulsively, and the tears ran down his cheeks.

THE SENTENCE OF DEATH.

After addressing a few impressive words to the Recorder, Harris finished the remarkable speech by turning again to Mr. Howe and handing him some letters. Harris had spoken for an hour and forty minutes. The Recorder then began to sheak slowly and impressively. After a few minutes Harris lifted his hand appealingly and asked permission to be seated. "Certainly, certainly," was the Recorder's answer. Twice Harris interrupted the Recorder to speak of points in the case that he had forgotten before. The Recorder heard him patiently.

"You are not here to have the sentence of death pronounced upon you," said the Recorder. "That has been already done. The previous sentence has merely to be reaffirmed and a date fixed.

"The order of the court is that the previous sentence be carried out during the week beginning May s."

The Recorder said this in ordinary tones, hurrically, as though anxious to get it over. Harris made no sign as heavy the dage of THE SENTENCE OF DEATH.

The Recorder sad this in ordinary tones, hurriedly, as though anxious to get it over. Harris made no sign as heard the date of his death. His already pallid face could become no paler. The deputy sheriffs took Harris to a private room until the crowd dispersed, and then took him back to the Tombs by a circuitons route.

The envelope which Harris handed to Mr. Howe, saying it contained Helen's last gift to him, had in it a pair of gold link cuffbuttons.

Alexander Johnson, secretary of the Board of State Charities, is at home from a visit of inspection to several State institutions. He was in every room and saw everybody at the reform school at Plainfield. The work of reconstructing the main building there, he says, will begin as soon as possible. The interior is to be remodeled and strengthened, and until the work is completed the inmates of the school will be in close quarters. Mr. Johnson also visited the prisoners at Michigan City. "Will the proposed new general shops of the company be huilt in this city?"

"Yes, but not for some time. We have decided to build the shops here, and I think that we shall make no further improvements at Brightwood."

In regard to improvements that were being made along the line, Mr. Ingalls said: "On the Peoria & Eastern division we gre spending about $1,000 a day in improvements. We are re-grading the track, putting down new rails and renairing the road-bed generally. Most of our time and attention are being devoted to the division between Chicago and Kankakee. We are fixing the road up there, making it practically new, in readiness for the rush of business that will come when the World's Fair opens."

Mr. Ingalls was told that a rumor had gained ground that he had been offered a good appointment under the present national administration, but he denied, any knowledge of it. He said: "I have not been offered anything nor do I want anything. I am perfectly satisfied with what I have, which is all that I can attend to at present."

In overruling the motion he gave the defendants 120 days in which to file a bill of exceptions. There was a discussion as to the proper decree to be rendered by the court. The plaintiffs contended that the decree should revoke and set aside the contested will; the defendants that it should go further and admit to probate what was alleged to be the genuine will of Mr. McDonald. The questions were taken under advisement by Judge Stephenson until Saturday, March 25.

REPUBLICAN CONFIDENCE.

THEY BELIEVE NOTHING STANDS IN THE WAY OF HARMONY.

The Difficulties Under Which the Party Has Labored in the Past-How Burke's Appointment Was Received Here.

The Republican leaders from over the tate who have had business in Indianapo-a since the inauguration of President leveland have exchanged congratulations with the local leaders of the party over the harmony which for the first time in five years exists in the party in this State. It is common talk among Republicans that the re-turn of ex-President Harrison to Indianapoand the elevation of Gresham to he first place in the new President's Cabinet are fortunate events for the Republicans of Indiana. The general opinion among the politicians is that there is now nothing in the way of united action. The men who have been active in the management of the last two national campaigns in this State say that only those who were closely identified with the affairs of the party knew how much ill feeling existed at all times be-tween the leaders of the Harrison wing of party and the men who at all spreferred Gresham to Harrison. They say that with so much ill feeling in exist any that with so much ill feeling in existence it is remarkable that the party made the showing it did in the State at the last two national elections. In 1888 the party in this State, though it had the candidate for President, went into the campaign crippled by dissensions. It was not until late in the campaign, it is said, that the men who had been against Harrison and for Gresham went to work with a will.
The administration of President Harrison, it is recalled, did not strengthen the party The administration of President Harrison, it is recalled, did not strengthen the party in the State. The men who were listed in the Gresham column never weakened in their loyalty to the Judge, and the disappointments over not receiving office drove from the Harrison wing of the party many men who had been active in working for Mr. Harrison's nomination. It is again recalled that last year the Gresham wing of the party was almost as strong as it had been four years before. Early in the preliminary fight it was for Gresham for President, but it fell in with the national leaders of the anti-Harrison contingent, and threw its influence at the Minneapolis convention for Blanne. The mea who were connected with the Repub-

the State there was positive opposition from these men.

It is the opinion of the Republicans who have been talking over the affairs of the party during the last few weeks that a better day is about to dawn. They say that here and there is a "Gresham Republican" who has gone over with Gresham to the Democratic party but on the other hand who has gone over with Gresham to the Democratic party, but, on the other hand, they say, the Republicans of influence who have been such ardent admirers of Gresham for the last ten years, are back into line with the men who have always been opposed to the Gresham movement. An ex-member of the State committee said to-day that, may; as he admired ex-President of the State committee said to-day that, mur's as he admired ex-President. Harrison, he must say that it was fortunate for the party that Harrison was out of politics. There was, he said, always an element that could be counted on to oppose Harrison, and so long as Mr. Harrison was foremost in the Republican politics of the State there would be trouble. He said he could see no reason now why the Republicans of Indiana could not unite and stay united. With Blaine dead, Gresham in the Cabinet of a Democratic President, and with Harrison at home, after having been honored all

Attorney, to succeed Smiley N. Chambers, whose term ended last Friday, has created a political sensation in Indianapolis. The Democratic politicians here had not thought that Burke had the "ghost of a show" of appointment. No one is more ed than some of the men who have visited Washington since the inauguration. Without exception they have reported that John W. Kern would likely be appointed, . and that if he was not, that the candidate of Secretary Sheerin, ex-Judge Nelson, would likely be the nominee. There were several reasons why it was thought that Mr. Burke would not succeed. In the first place he was one of the most active anti-Cleveland men in the State. He was on intimate terms with the late James H. Rice, and did all he could to prevent the vote of Indiana at the national convention last June being cast for Mr. Cleveland. He was for Gray first, last and all the time. With Voorhees, Lamb and Jewett, he held out against Cleveland until he saw that the nomination could not be prevented. In view of the fact that Burke had been so active in his opposition to the nomination of Mr. Cleveland, his candidacy for the district attorneyship was looked upon by some of the "original Cleveland men" as a sort of a

A second reason why the Democratic politiciars in general supposed Burke did not stand in danger of political lightning was his record in relation to organized labor. The legislative committee of the organized workingmen of the State which watched the session of the General Assembly two years ago hold Burke responsible for the alleged bad treatment they received at the hands of the State Senate. Burke was the principal character in the "blue book!" which the committee issued. The committee even carried the fight farther than to write Burke down in the book. They went into his district and assert that they detented him for renomination for the State Senate. At any rate he was not re-A second reason why the Democratic They went into his district and assert that they defeated him for renomination for the State Senate. At any rate he was not renominated. When it became known that Burke was a candidate for the position of United States Attorney, the organized workingmen of the State sent a committee to Washington to oppose his nomination. That committee filed its protest with the President two weeks ago, and it was supposed by the members of the committee that they had spoiled whatever chances Burke might have had for the position. The nomination is regarded by the union labor men who have been fighting Burke as an affront.

The Democratic politicians when they heard of the nomination of Burke this atternoon confessed that they were puzzled. They do not understand it at all. The "original Cleveland men" are almost ready to express some of the sentiments which they feel. The politicians say it is evident that there is a combination among the candidates of the Gray wing of the party. Every appointment from Indiana to date represents the Gray wing of the party. Every appointment from Indiana to date represents the Gray wing and every man appointed so far was the candidate of Senator Voorhees, who was not for Cleveland. That men who did all they could to prevent the vote of the Indiana delegation being cast solidly for Cleveland at Chicago should be recognized is due, it is declared, to the fact that Cleveland has been imposed duek in the political puddle." His appointment leads the Cleveland men to conclude that the Big Four in Indiana are Gray, Matthews, Voorhees and Lamb, and not as was aupposed, Shanklin, Mores, Turpie and English.

"You gave the secret away."

Mr. Corr said he was afraid the announcement that he would receive the deputyship was a little premature, but he did not deny that he had been promised the place.

Mr. Corr is about thirty-five years of age. He stands well at the Bloomington bar. He was formerly the partner of Judge Miers, and is at present one of the trustees of the State University.

Francis T. Hord, who would possibly have been assistant district attorney if John W. Kern had been appointed, said this afternoon that he had no idea who was booked for the second place unless it was Mr. Corr, of Bloomington. Speaker Curtis, of the House of Representatives, was inclined to think that Representative Barnes might be appointed assistant. However, Mr. Barnes said only a few days ago that the same influence that was pushing Kern was for him.

Mr. English On Office-Seeking. W. H. English returned from Washing ton this morning. He says that his visit was not connected with the solicitation of any office, but was to look after some un improved real estate he has long owned in Washington, and on which he thinks of hav-Washington, and on which he thinks of having buildings erected. He said, "I intended to call and pay my respects to the President, but deferred it until some other time, on learning of the great pressure of visitors, and the many cares of office which were pressing upon him. The pressure for office is fearful, but not greater than usual at this period of a new administration. Indianians were numerous, some of them probably a little over noisy, and too zealous in demanding recognition. There was more zeal than good judgment shown in many instances. Editors Shanklin and Morss were both being pushed for the same position—a first-class pushed for the same position—a first-class consulate, of which only two are left, and neither at all likely to be given to Indiana. I think if an application were urged in be-half of either of these gentlemen, for some-thing not in the foreign department, both Mr. English said he thought some way would yet be found to recognize them both. In speaking of W. E. English's chances, he said he thought them to be good, but nothing was certain about such matters in advance. He eaid: "My son undoubtedly stands well with the administration and has no epposition from Indiam, so far as is known." The position he seeks is an honorable one, but as it has, scarcely enough money in it to pay expenses it is not much sought after, and he is believed to be the only Indiama applicant, although there are, of course, other applicants from other States."

As to tite local Indiamapolis offices Mr. English thought rothing had been determined farther than Albert Sahm was to be postmaster.

Mr. English said that he thought for United States marshal and district attorney Hawkins and Kern stood the best chance, but when informed that the appointments had been made and that Burke had been chosen instead of Kern, he said: "If that is the case, I have nothing more to say."

CHARGES AGAINST THE MONON. Additional Paragraphs Filed by Craig in the Receivership Case.

William J. Craig, plaintiff in the receivership suit against the Monon railroad, today filed two additional paragraphs to his complaint, setting forth additional grounds why the road should be put in other hands. In the second paragraph he alleges that the stock, authorized by law, of the cer-poration is $5,000,000 and may not legally exceed that amount, but that seven million dollars' worth of illegal stock has been issued; that President Thomas has sent out a circular announcing

In the third paragraph specific charges of mismanagement are made against the defendants. It is alleged that Thomas and the others assumed control April 5, 1891, and that, two days later, a claim of the Monon against the Louisville Southern of $200,000 for track seizure was satisfied without consideration. It is charged that Thomas is a large owner of the Louisville Southern. The plaintiff alleges that the defendants refused to bring suit to recover this sum from Thomas, or to permit him to do so. It is also charged that the repre-sentations of the management that large amounts were required to improve the road are not true and that such statements were made to furnish an excuse to issue illegal stock to the amount of $7,000,000. It is charged that this stock was sold at one-fourth its value to a syndicate, composed largely of the defendants. It is also charged that besides the $3,000,000 preferred charged that besides the $5,000,000 preferred stock a further issue of $54,000,000 is to be made, making the total capitalization, com-mon and preferred, $10,000,000. It is alleged that the improvements have not been made from the sales of stock, but from the earnings of the road. It is also alleged that the indebtedness of the road is alleged that the indebtedness of the road is over $1,000,000, and that it has recently mortgaged its system for $370,000; that President Thomas has said he would put the road in the hands of a receiver if a pending claim of $600,000 is established; that the road is in imminent danger of insolvency. The court is asked to declare the $7,000,000 alleged illegal stock void; to require Thomas to pay $200,000 into the hands of the receiver and for other relief.

Attorney Trissal this afternoon asked for an order from Judge Bartholomew requiring the defendants to bring their books and records within the jurisdiction of the court.

A Broad Ripple Company Suit. In Justice Daniels's Court this morning ne case of Albert J. Beveridge against the Indianapolis and Broad Ripple Rapid Tran sit Company was taken up. Mr. Beveridge claims $250 for professional services as at-Claypool and others against the defendant in the Marion Superior Court. Summons in the case was served on W. L. Mr. Claypool denies that the service was legal, and Mr. Beveridge has to find the proper officer to make defendant in the suit.

Charges were filed against patrolmen Henry Pope and Patrick Griffen for neglect of duty. It was charged that the captains and sergeants were unable to find the men on their district, and this neglect was of frequent occurrence. The officers were reprimanded and lost four days' pay. John P. Schiltges, east market master, asked that Lemuel Eaglin, garbage-hauler at the market, be given more pay. iven more pay.

on petition from the merchant force the commissioners appointed Captain Thomas, Samuel Hice and W. F. Walker a committee to examine the applications for membership. Hice and Walker sent a letter to-day, stating that Thomas refused to act with them. There was also filed a long protest against the appointment of any committee on applications. The question was held for investigation. Special police powers were granted to Adolph Bretzlaff at the When Block, Charles Freidgen at school No. 2, and August Heissenberg at Delaware street and Ft. Wayne avenue.

Joseph H. Howes, a clerk at the post-office, filed a claim for the reward offered for the arrest of A. J. Caffee, the Texas extressurer. He said he furnished the department with the information that enabled the police to make the capture. Superintendent Colbert was ordered to pay him the $50. The Gardners' Benefit Association, of Marion county, petitioned for more space in the East Market. The Indianapolis, Decatur & Western was notified that it must put a flagman at the Missouri street crossing, as ordered by the Council. President Hawkins asked City Attorney Jones if the alleged "sparring matches" which have been held in this city came under the statute against prize-fighting. Mr. Jones replied with the prize-fighting statute, which did not answer the question asked by President Hawkins. The idea is to prevent such contests if possible.

The controversy that defeated the North Illinois-street improvement last year is likely to bring about the same result again, as a number of property holders are pre paring to protest against paving with asphalt. They want brick. The Board of Public Works does not want to use that kind of material, as the street is partially paved with asphalt. The advocates of brick say that they are in a large majority, and will file remonstrances when the sub-ject comes up. An intimation from the board is to the effect that if the property owners engage in another dispute, the improvement will not be made this year.

The ordinance increasing the pay of the police department will, in all probability, also be passed, but not in the form as presented. The superintendent will receive no increase. AN OFFER TO MR. HARRISON. He Is To Be Tendered the Presidency of the State University.

Ex-President Harrison is to be tendered the presidency of the Indiana State University, at Bloomington, made vacant by the resignation of Prof. J. M. Coulter. The trustees of the State University have been casting about for a new president ever since they received the resignation of President Coulter, but not until the latter part of last week did it occur to them that it would be a wise stroke to make Mr. Harrison the president of the in-stitution. To-day a delegation of Bloomington citizens, among whom are Elmer Corr, the local trustee of the college, and John W. Cravens, editor of the Bloom-ington World, arrived in the city to discuss the proposition with friends of the university from other parts of the State, and to offer the position to Mr. Harrison before they return home.

We can not see why the ex-President "We can not see why the ex-President should not accept the presidency of the university," said Mr. Cravens this afternoon. "We shall urge him to take the place as a matter of State pride. The university has a reputation that extends all over the country, and we believe Mr. Harrison should consent to become its head. The subject will be talked over while we are in the city, and the official tender of the place will likely be made by the trustees during their visit here."

The plan of the trustees is to make Mr. Harrison the president of the institution with the understanding that he will give

HOSPITAL SUPERINTENDENCY. of Applicants.

At 10 o'clock this morning the new trus tees of the Central Indiana Hospital for the Insane met in the gold-room at the Bates House. They chose this meeting place in order to elude their pursuers, several of whom went to the hospital in order to present claims for official recognition for themselves or friends. Their retreat was fairly well chosen, but a number of persons tracked them to the Bates House and were on hand to buttonhole them when they emerged from their seclusion. 'Squire Carson, of Fairland, the senio trustee who has been re-appointed, opened the conversation. "We have done nothing as yet in the matter of appointing a suc-cessor to Dr. Charles E. Wright," said Mr. Carson. "Mr. Osterman who has met with Mr. Hauser and myself, has not yet filed his bond nor have I. This will be done this afternoon at 2 o'clock when we meet at the Governor's office. We have been receiving applications for the position of superintendent and will give each one full consideration. It may be severaldays before the appointment is made. It certainly will not be made today."

To this proposition Mr. Hauser and Mr. At noon Speaker Curtis of the late House Representatives, asked a brief audience

The board met at the Governor's office this afternoon. The bonds of the members were filed and the organization was perfected. The superintendent will probably not be appointed for two or three days.

TO MOVE THE ENCAMPMENT.

George H. Thomas Post, It Is Said Will Act to This End.

It is said by members of the Grand Army here that certain G. A. R. men in George H. Thomas Post have decided to go to the State encampment at Evansville next month prepared to work for a resolution suggesting to the national chief officers the propriety of taking the encampment this year from Indianapolis. Members of the post are reticent about the alleged decision and will not say whether or not it is true. Some say that the turmoil that has been stirred up by the opposition to the appro-priation has made many of the members of the post indifferent and a majority is said to favor the abandonment of the national encampment scheme.

An Evansville Committee. Henry S. Bennett, Elder Cooper and J. A Parvin, constituting a committee from the Grand Army posts of Evansville, came to this city to-day and called on ex-President this city to-day and called on ex-President Harrison. They asked Mr. Harrison to attend the State encampment at Evansville, April 4, 5 and 6, and to deliver an address at the camp-fire in the evening. Mr. Harrison did not promise to attend, but assured the committee that he would if he could.

The committee also called upon Governor Matthews and other State officers to invite them to the encampment. All accepted the invitation. Sam McLeish, agent of the E. & T. H., accompanied the committee.

TIONS REJECTED.

Considerable Discussion Taken Part In By Various Presbyterian Ministers Before the Vote Was Taken.

The Indianapolis Presbytery mer in the First Presbyterian church this morning, with the Rev. E. I. Davies, of Hopewell, as moderator, and the Rev. E. P. Whallon, now of Cincinnati, acting as clerk. The meeting or Chelinath, acting as clerk. The meeting was called to consider the report of the Gen-eral Assembly's committee on the revision of the Westminster Confession of Faith. The Rev. Henry L. Dickerson moved that the overtures of the General Assembly be answered in the negative, because the re-visions proposed were unsatisfactory to a large number of Presbyterians. He held that, though the committee had made many admirable changes, it was simply impossible for fifteen or twenty men to prepare in a few months a system of doctrine that would be satisfactory to all the church, and that it was preposterous to attempt it. The famous third chapter of the confession, so obscure before, had been more than ever mystified, and ministers had to ask more than ever "Where are we at?" He thought that action, such as that of the Presbyterians in England — adopting a shorter and simpler statement of the creed as a supplement and explanation of the original confession—would be more likely to prove satisfactory than an attempted re-

The Rev. J. A. Milburn said that with the original confession and a shorter creed there would be two symbols of the church and that there would be inevitable division of opinion as to the true standard. The Rev. E. P. Whallon took Mr. Milburn's view, and said further that the Indianapolis Presbytery had proposed revision of the confession and everything it had suggested had been put into the revision. The Presbytery ought, therefore, to vote in favor of the reposition.

The Rev. G. L. Macintosh favored the The Rev. G. L. Macintosh favored the old confession, because any one could put his own construction upon it. The new confession had all the infelicities of the old, without the same freedom of personal construction. The Rev. W. A. Hendrickson, who seconded Mr. Dickerson's motion, said that the new confession was longer. said that the new confession was longer than the old, was too hard for the ordinary people to understand and was unsatisfactory. He thought that if the overtures were adopted the agitation of revision would end, but that with a rejection of them it would continue until a shorter and more esticators. shorter and more satisfactory statement was adopted. The old confession lay harm-less on the bookshelves as it was, and a rest on the booksneives as it was, and a great many did not know what was in it.

A substitute motion was made that the overtures be taken up one by one and acted upon separately. Mr. Milburn insisted that this was the only proper way of considering the overtures. He declared that many present, including himself, were not acquainted with the overtures and could not rose since with the overtures and could not vote sin-with the overtures and could not vote sincerely upon them without hearing them read before the meeting.

The Rev. M. L. Haines, however, asked that the question of rejecting the overtures as a whole be first disposed of, and spoke in favor of the rejection. He denied Mr. Whallon's statement that all the revisions suggested by the Indianapolis Presbytery had been adopted. He said that the revis-ions had come back in a mangled form and that the third chapter, which the Presbytery wished dropped altogether, had only been made more obscure than before. Though he had favored revision before, he

The Governor Tells of the Willard Hotel Affair-The Southern Trip.

Governor Matthews was at his office at an early hour this morning, having returned from Washington Sunday morning, and being unable to go to his farm on account of a wreck on the railroad. When asked about the episode, said to have occurred between him and J. G. Shanklin in Willard's hotel, Washington, in which Shanklin refused to shake hands with Mr. Matthews,

"When I went into the hotel I was accosted by W. H. Hawkins, of Sullivan county. I shook hands with him, and as I county. I shook hands with him, and as I did so I saw Mr. Shanklin leaning against a pillar with his hands behind him. We exchanged greetings, but he did not have an opportunity to decline my hand nor I his."

The Governor, Mrs. Matthews, their daughter, Miss Helen, and Miss Callie McMechan, the Governor's niece, will leave for Florida to-morrow night. The party will spend Wednesday in St. Louis, and leave in the evening for New Orleans on the steamer City of Hickman. It is undecided as yet whether the leisure time will be spent in New Orleans and vicinity or in St. Augustine, Fla., their objective point. The trip is for recreation, and will occupy about two weeks.

Young Pastor Chosen. DECATUR, March 20 .- The First Presbyerian church of Decatur has unanimously called the Rev. William O. Alexander, o Cincinnati, O., as pastor. Though Mr. Alexander is but twenty-five years old he was chosen from among fifty applicants to fill the vacancy, his eloquence, energy and enthusiasm pre-eminently fitting him to be the leader of this growing church of young people. James J. Corbett, the pugilist, was taken into membership in the Cleveland Club last Saturday. At least it is said that his initiation fee was coflected. "The Cleveland Club," said one of its members, "not only counts Corbett on its roll, but also such other great men as Cleveland and many others."

Time For the Argument Named. This afternoon Judge Bartholomey cided to hear argument in the Monon case on Wednesday next. As Attorney Trissal was leaving the court-room he was served with papers to appear as defendant to a demand for $5,000 made in a suit on notes filed by Ann V. Ferguson.

MR. BISSELL AND THE SMALLER POSTOFFICES.

are 63,963 fourth-class postoffices in the United States. These are offices where the receipts do not exceed $2,000 annually. The President has nothing to do with the appointment of postmasters of this class. To the Postmaster-General and his associates is confided the business of making over sixty thousand men and women happy, and a like number unhappy. They are chief executors and executioners under the law of compensation, and if they do not perform their duties it is not because they are to mitted to forget that a good many people are willing to sell and cancel stamps, and hand out letters and newspapers through the democratic portal of the general delivery. It is somewhat appalling to think of the deluge of mail that would confront Messrs. Bissell and Maxwell if, on a single morning, they should receive applications for postmaster's commissions from a small per cent, of the 63,963 towns and villages of the fourth class.

Mr. Bissell announces two rules which them he will cause a revolution in fourthclass prerogatives. One will create a lusty protest from all parts of Uncle Sam's sions of approval equally wholesale. The devote the whole of their time to their duties. The second is that applicants will to serve. A Congressman who called on Mr. Bissell the other day to recommend a constituent for a signed by reputable citizens must accompany the applications of all candidates for minor postoffices. The Representative was so amazed at this indifference to his wishes that he called again to make sure there had been no mistake, and he was assured that his ears had not deceived him.

It will be difficult for the Postoffice Department to live up to the first dictum laid down by Mr. Bissell. Indeed, it has already been announced that it will be rigidly adhered to only in the case of postoffices which yield a living income. The country store will still remain doubtless the common home of the postoffice; and very properly, for usually in small towns and villages the country store is the most convenient-often the only available place. Moreover, the country store occupies an important place in the social economy. It is a forum where Uncle Sam's ægis is defended and upheld every day in the year, except Sunday. It is the club house of all the men of the community.

The second rule has much to commend it. It is a constant source of humiliation to a community to have to do business with a postmaster who is not respected. Mr. Wanamaker appointed some postmastere who did not enjoy the respect and esteem of their fellowcitizens. In a number of instances ycotta followed, people preferring travel far from home to buy their stamps and mail their letters, thus cutting down the receipts of their own offices until the obnoxious officials were left without revenue. A postmaster who is constantly to face with all the people in a community should be liked by everybody. He should be reasonably indulgent about box-rent and sympathetic in announcing that longed-for letters have not come. He should know how to keep a secret; he should be patient and gracious. Men who are likely to fit this description will have no trouble in getting names to their petitions, and we are sure that Messrs. Biasell and Maxwell will joyfully issue

OUR FOREIGN-BORN POPULATION. CENSUS BULLETIN No. 357 shows that the total foreign-born population of this country in 1880 was 2,244,602. In 1890 it was 9,249,547. Of all foreigners the Irish were the greatest in number, in 1850 amounting to 901,719; the Germans were next, but hardly more than half so many, numbering 563,774. Canadians and Newfoundlanders came next with 147,711. In 1800 the Germans had increased to 1,276, 075, the Irish to 1,611,304. In 1870 the two came nearer together, the Germans increasing in greater proportion. They passed the Irish in 1830, and in 1890 were the largest foreign-born element, numbering 2,784,394, the Irish numbering 1,871,

509; the Canadians and Newfoundlanders off of the late lamented. Mediums are often have increased to 980,000. The English have increased from 278,675 in 1850 to

Of this foreign-born population 3,888,177 are in the North Atlantic division of the country, which is made up of the New England States, New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania; 4,000,114 are in the North Central division, which is made up of Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Iowa, Missouri, the two Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas, thus more than eight of the nine and a quarter millions of foreign born residing in the States of these two divisions.

PUBLISHING THE NAMES. THE new administration is doing wisely and well in making public the names of all aspirants for appointment to office. There is nothing so advantageous in the management of public affairs as complete publicity. There may be occasions, to be sure, when secreey is necessary. But there can be no need for secrecy in the filling of the offices. The people have a right to know the names and antecedents of the men who desire to do the people's work in public offices of responsibility and trust. Many men have sought appointments secretly in the past. The first intimation that people even of their own neighborhood have often had that some men desired office was the announcement of their appointment by the President. he intends to follow in appointing post- Then, frequently it was discovered that masters. This will be likely to do away with appointments in haste to be repeuted for at leisure. The prinpostoffice was told that a petition ciple of publicity has long been observed by the appointing power in special cases. It has almost always been customary where offices of great importance were to be filled to "feel" public sentiment by allowing rumors to reach the papers that so-and-so was to be appointed. Now this principle is adopted as a general rule. The fact that a man's application for office is to be immediately made public will have a deterrent influence on many aspirants for place. Men with too much record or too many antecedents will hesitate about asking for public office if their asking is to be known to all men. In every way it is a good thing to let in the light.

MR. CLEVELAND is altogether too deliberate about those offices to suit the Hoosier claimants. Here he has been President for two whole weeks and only one Indiana postmaster appointed! Was it really worth while electing him after all?

MR. VOORHEES Twee his chairmanship the Senate finance committee to the fact or his seniority of service on that committee. It is one of the usages of the Senate that the "ranking" member of the majority party of an important committee shall be its chairman. The Senate is very tenacious in adhering to its usages and to senatorial courtesy, even when they would be more honored in the breach than the observwith his party's platform and with the Pres ident on financial questions. He is a radical silverite; opposed on the one hand to the repeal of the Sherman law, which the Chicago platform pronounced a "cowardly makeshift in favor, on the other hand, of free-coinage while Mr. Cleveland "believes that the greatest peril would be invited by the adoption of the scheme for the unlimited coinage of silver at our mints." In fact Mr. Voorhees has been described as "an incarnation of unsoundness on all matters connected with the currency." In view of all this, it does seem astounding that he should still, in deference to the usages of the Senate, have been made chairman of the finance committee

THE Boston Herald says the true civilservice reformer will never seek office for himself. We commend its words as wise, sensible and patriotic:

sensible and patriotic:

It may be the duty of a citizen to take office under the general Government if it is offered to him as a tribute to his capacity to be of service in it. It is the reverse of duty on his part to solicit office personally or through the instrumentality of others, and it is a decogation from his dignity, if it does not awaken doubts of his disinterestedness in addition. The true civil service reformer never seeks office. He can not do this without a violation of his professed principles. The theory of civil service reform is that the best man to fill an office should be obtained. It is certainly not modest for a man to assume best man to hir an omce should be obtained. It is certainly not modest for a man to assume that he is the best person to hold an office, and less interested testimony would naturally be sought on this point. The appointing power ought to be uninfluenced by outside pressure in making selections.

We fear though it will be long before this doctrine is widely accepted.

The Dead Ship.

The ship came sailing, sailing,
Into our old town—
My love combed out her golden hair;
It fell to the hem of her gown.
Oh, my heart, break!

No master and no crew was hers, A ship of the dead was she, And sailing, sailing, sailing— The folk ran out to see. Oh, my heart, break!

And first they said nor yea, nor nay; Then some began to weep; And some did count their little lads, As shepherds count their sheep. Oh, my heart, break!

Oh, sailing, sailing, sailing—
"Whom will it be?" said they;
"She never sails to this out town
But one doth go away."
Oh, my heart, break!

"Yea, one will go from this our town And come back nevermore; Whate'er His will, Lord God is good;" Thus I at my love's door. Oh, my heart, break!

And climbed up my love's stair.
And called her softly—through the dusk
I saw her golden hair.
Oh, my heart, break! Who went away from our old town
And came back nevermore?
It was my love; she lay there dead
Upon the chamber floor,
Oh, my heart, break!

GERTRUDE SHUTTER'S CASE. Suit to Test the Validity of the Board of Children's Guardians Law Suit was filed this afternoon in the Federal Court by Attorneys McCray and Ashby, on behalf of Gertrude Shutter, to test the validity of the law creating and empowering the Board of Children's Guardians. The the Board of Children's Guardians, The board is composed of N. A. Hyde, F. W. Flanner, Charles Martindale, Julia H. Goodhart, Anna C. Regume and Mrs. J. A. Mil-burn. The complaint alleges that Gertrude Shatter was restrained, by order of the Cir-cuit Court of Marion county against Shade A. Shutter and Belle Shutter, parents of the A. Shutter and Belle Shutter, parents of the beneficiary of the suit, which is alleged to be illegal, for the following reasons: The trial of the cause in the Marion Circuit Court was illegal, unwarranted and unlawful as against Gertrude Shutter, for the reason that no notice of service of any process was ever served upon her, apprising her of the time and place of the trial; that she has committed we crime and is not held in cuscommitted no crime and is not held in custody upon any judgment against her for any crime or misdemeanor, or the violation of any law; that no charge or complaint of any character has been filed against her, either civil or criminal, of which she has had any notice, or upon which she has ever been called to answer. Court at no time having any jurisdiction whatever over the person of the plaintiff. The plaintiff further states that the board is now threatening to carry Gertrade Shutter beyond the limits of Marion county and be-yond the limits of the State, and are threatening to indenture and apprentice her to persons unknown to the affiant, and be-yond the jurisdiction of the State and Federal courts of Indiana; that they threaten to destroy the identity and heirship threaten to destroy the identity and heirship of the affiant by indenture and apprentice-ship under another and different name than that of Gertrude Shutter, and to place her servant over her protest in the hands of parties unknown, and thus destroy the identity of affiant, and place her whereabouts beyond the knowledge of her parents. The affiant charges that it is the fixed policy of said alleged Board of Guardians to thus destroy the identity of the child, and if possible procust her presents relatives and friends ble prevent her parents, relatives and friends from ever knowing her whereabouts or what has become of her, thus abridging the rights and privileges of Gertrude Shutter to in-herit through her ancestors, and of expend-ing her filial affection upon her parents and relatives. The complaint accuses the board of trying to compel Gertrude Shutter to assume an unnatural relation in some alleged home and be reduced as an apprentice to menial servitude until she arrives at the age of twenty-one years. It is also charged that the Marion Circuit Court has refused upon proper motion and petition to order that the child retain her present and proper name, and that her whereabouts be made a matter of record, and that her parents be permitted to know of her whereabouts or permitted to see or visit her, The com-plaint charges that the child has been kept in close confinement since March 1, 1893, and that no friends, relatives or attorneys have been able to see her. It closes with a prayer that a writ of habeas corpus be issued against the board.

that extension and improvement, and so long as we make a good thing of it financially we do not care what the results may be.

Our city—readily conceded by visitors—is a beautiful city to live in, but it is the common remark, "Have you no parks here, and where are they?" Yes, we have a few, very few, and of a very inferior grade, too, so poor that we feel no pleasure in showing them.

Your paper to-day printed a petition to have streets cut through the old Morris homestead which lies almost in the heart of the city—cortainly the center of a beautiful part of it. The petition was granted, and before long the old trees and foliage in that pretty piece of ground will be swept away and the chance to perpetunte it in its natural state be lost. It seems a pity that this city should allow the opportunity of holding this ground, and with scarcely an expenditure for improvement necessary to convert it into a beautiful park, slip away, when no doubt the owners would willingly agree to dispose of it to the city for a fair price. We need parks in our city, and if we can locate them near the center, so much the better, for it is there they do the most good, I trust The News will lend its aid toward procuring the addition of this beautiful spot on the face of this city.

AN EXHIBIT NEVER EQUALED IN COMPREHENSIVENESS.

Contributions Received From Societies of Women in All Countries Illustrative of Their Accomplishments In Science.

Among a great number of sketches submitted in competition for this building by women from all over the land, the presi-dent of the Board of Lady Managers quickly discovered in the sketch submitted by Miss Sophia G. Hayden that harmony of group-ing and gracefulness of details which indicate the architectural scholar, and to her was awarded the first prize of a thousand dollars, and also the execution of the de-Directly in front of the building the on takes the form of a bay, about four nundred feet in width. From the center of this bay a grand landing and staircase leads to a terrace six feet above the water. Crossing this terrace other staircases give access to the ground four feet above, on which, about one hundred feet back, the building be maintained. It is to be demonstrated that women are striving for excellence, and desire recognition for merit. In order that enormous amount of work being done by women may be appreciated, a tabulated statement will be procured and shown with every exhibit, stating the proportion of woman's work that enters into it. To secure this the following blanks have been furnished to the lady managers of each State and Territory: "Number of wage-carners, or self-supporting women; number employed in factories, stores, shops number employed in factories, stores, shops and offices; owning and controlling farms; engaged in mining; engaged in horticulture; engaged in the professions; engaged in domestic service; of authors; of teachers; engaged in art work and designing; engaged in literary work; engaged in other lines." In the general Exposition buildings, where the competitive exhibits will be placed, the exhibit of women's work will not be separated from that of men. It will not be separated from that of men. It would be practically impossible, in most cases, to divide the finished result of the combined work of men and women working side by side in all factories of the world. In order to disprove the frequent statement that women do not possess, greative minds In order to disprove the frequent statement that women do not possess creative minds, it will be shown that the industrial arts, among all primitive peoples, were almost exclusively invented and carried on by women. They originated the art of cooking and the preparation of food, including the grinding of grain and the making of bread; the curing of skins and fars and the shaping of them into garments; the invention and use of needles; and the THE FOOT-BALL CONTEST.

Butler-DePauw Game to Be Played Over-The Schedule.

The executive committee of the State College Athletic Association at its meeting Saturday afternoon, decided that the contested Butler-DePauw foot-ball game shall be played over and that the club that wins shall play the Thanksgiving game here with Purdue this year. The date fixed for the Butler-DePanw game is October 14, and the place the DePanw grounds. The decision seems to give satisfaction. The only criticism is about the place. Students think the game should be played on neutral ground.

The committee adopted the following schedule of games:

Three Pretty Children's Dresses That

I know that the three little people of my

the matter of dress, because they grow out of so many clothes and wear out others. It is always so with the little ones, and points on their garments are always helpful and timely. The largest of the three wears a cut separately and the latter is then gathered to the waist, but the upper dress is cut in one and closes in the back. The side front seams are rather curved as far as the shoulder seams, and are trimmed with reveres of the same material, lined with silk

PATRIOTIC CITIZENS TO THE RESCUE.

[New Castle Courier.]

It will begin to look as though the G. A. R., will soon have just cause of action against Indiana for obtaining the coming encampment under false pretense. Last September the whole State united in the patriotic plea to make Indianapolis the place of meeting, assuring the old soldiers that the city and State would welcome them gladly and entertain them most hospitably. First, the State refused to appropriate a dollar for the purpose of entertainment, and now there is a hitch in the City Council over the appropriation of $75,000 permitted by special act of the General Assembly. If Indiana can afford to suffer official disgrace in connection with the G. A. R. encampment, it is time that her patriotic citizens come to the rescue. It is no impossible thing to yet make good Indiana's promises of last September. Certainly 100,000 Hoosiers can be found who will give $1 each to redeem the State from the official neglect and infamy of her misrepresentatives.

"EVERLASTING DISGRACE."

[Danville Republican.]

It will be to the everlasting disgrace of Indianapolis if the Council refuses to appropriate the sum needed for the national encampment in September. We saw nothing in the bill for the State to appropriate money for that purpose but a scheme. nothing in the bill for the State to appropriate money for that purpose but a scheme by which Indianapolis would profit at the expense of the State. Indianapolis did not want the national encampment simply because it was a meeting of honored veteran soldiers. The city worked to secure the last. Democratic national convention. It has wanted the annual meetings of the Knights of Pythias, the Odd Fellows and the Knights Templars. Had it secured any of these it would not have asked the Legislature for a State appropriation. The city has wanted these national gatherings of various organizations solely for business reasons, solely for the dollars brought and the advertisement the city received. The national encampment will, it is thought, bring from $1,500,000 to $3,000,000 to Indianapolis, and it is a business venture for the city. But it will be a shame if the city government refuses an appropriation has been the city received. shame if the city government refuses an ap-propriation because it will mark Indianap-olis as narrow and blind to its own best in-

REPUTATION AT STAKE. [Evansville Standard.]
First of all, it was demanded that the Legislature should make a donation to the encampment. The plan was viciously as-sailed and finally defeated. However, special legislation was obtained granting the municipal authorities of Indianapolis the power to make a contribution out of the public treasury. This likewise met with violent opposition from certain sources. The violent opposition from certain sources. The finance committee was but meagerly successful in obtaining subscriptions from the business men of Indianapolis. At this late day, the managers find themselves confronted by a large necessary expenditure with little on which to realize. In the midst of the dilemma there is a suggestion that the encampment be abandoned and a surrender made to some other city. If such is done, it will be to the lasting discredit of Indiit will be to the lasting discredit of Indianapolis, which prides herself on being the city of conventions and encampments. How can she unblushingly ask for recognition in the future? Not only is her reputation at stake, but also her future prestige, and if she is not equal to the present occasion she will receive a repulse that will require will receive a repulse that will require years from which to recover. Home pride alone ought to be strong enough to guarantee the success of the undertaking. Patriotism ought not to be measured by the otism ought not to be measured by the purse strings.

Evansyille, too, has an encampment—that of the State organizations. The business men of this city respond liberally to the call for donations and the hospitality of the public in general has been extended to the visitors. The grand old "boys in blue" will welcome. Evansville did not set about to secure an encampment that could not be cared for after it had been obtained. It measured the undertaking by its capabilities and the result is that no error or blunder of any kind has been consequent. In der of any kind has been consequent. Indianapolis may well learn a lesson from Evansville. We have not taken upon our shoulders a burden too heavy to be borne and are not too miserly to go into our pockets deep enough to guaranteethe finances.

UNFORTUNATE PREDICAMENT. [Lafavette Courier.] The citizens of Indianapolis are deserving The citizens of Indianapolis are deserving of profound commiscration on account of the unfortunate and humiliating predicament in which they find themselves in consequence of the complications growing out of the proposed holding of the national Grand Army encampment in that city next September. The invitation to have the reunion held at Indianapolis this year was accepted by the G. A. R. authorities from a committee of citizens who seem to have been more zealous than prudent, and the competition from other localities spurred the Hoosiers to make some exceedingly rash promises The little toddler wears an accordionplaited coat made of rough, hard material to prevent the plaits drawing out. It looks well made either of dark red cheviot, with the embroidery in black, or of blue or white, with the embroidery in contrasting colors.
The lining can be made of flannel, and the plaited upper part is cut about an inch longer. The plain skirt is about nineteen inches long, two yards wide, and is gathered to the embroidered yoke. The puffed sleeve is plaited and gathered into a cuff, decorated with embroidery corresponding to that of the yoke, and also the standing collar. The cap is made of the same material and the same color as the coat. It is cut in two pieces, with the seam in the center and lined with flannel or silk. Between the lining and the material is put a ruching composed of ribbon an inch in width.
The strings are three-quarters of a yard in length. It is trimmed with bows of ribbon.
The third costume is a blouse dress for girls from six to eight years old. The skirt and belt are made of dark blue cheviot, and the blouse of plaid silk in which red, blue and yellow predominate. The belt is a bias piece four and a half inches wide, has a piece of whalebone inserted in front and back to keep it in shape, and is finished at the top and bottom with rolls of velvet. It is sewed to the skirt. The latter has a

After the location of the encampment had been secured in the name and for the renown of Indianapolis, an appeal was made to the Legislature to make an appropriation of State funds for the expense of the celebra-Legislature to make an appropriation of State funds for the expense of the celebration. This proposition was emphatically repudiated, to the dismay of the projectors of the enterprise, and as a last resort they petitioned the City Council to levy aspecial tax of $75,000 for the purpose named. But even the municipal powers seem opposed to making an appropriation, and even if the tax levy should be ordered, any citizen so disposed may single-handed and alone render it of no avail by injunction proceedings, so it seems clear at this juncture that the attempt to hold the encampment at Indianapolis will prove a failure. As there appears to be so little probability that a satisfactory arrangement can be made, the prime movers in the enterprise ought at once to abandon it to some city which is financially able and well disposed to handle it properly and creditably. It is obvious that the city of Indianapolis, in the absence of public aid, is incompetent to successfully cope with an affair of such magnitude, and it would be a burning and lasting shame to the good name of the State, as well as to its capital city, if the farce should be continued to the end at the rate it has been going since the beginning. The object is a worthy one, and deserves to be encouraged by public aid, perhaps, but any further attempt to carry out the original program on a peanut policy will simply be an invitation to final disaster which will affect the whole State, and against which the people of the entire State are justified in protesting.

One hears a good deal of the big trees of the Northwest, but the fact is that all vegetation there is luxuriant beyond the belief of the Eastern man. There are Douglas firs in Washington and for some distance north of that which are honestly said to be as tall as the Brooklyn bridge towers. Planks from these trees sixteen feet wide have been exhibited, and a straight mast 125 feet long, unmarked by branches, was cut on the shore of Puget sound. Common roadside weeds and bushes have a proportionate largeness, their leaves being twice as big and their stems twice as long as in the East, and the ordinary fern that in this State grows knee high is found there with stalks seven feet long. POLITICAL DISAGREEMENT AND DIVORCE PROCEEDINGS.

A Drug Firm Makes An Assignment Death of a Discouraged Office-Seeker - Falls To Enforce the Law.

[Special to The Indianapolis News.] FRANKFORT, March 20 .- Last Saturday Mrs. Rebecca E. Ghere filed a complaint for divorce from her husband, Aaron Ghere, al-leging cruel and inhuman treatment. Aaron Ghere one year ago was a widower, and an uninteresting but well-to-do farmer, with a large family of married children, who guarded his broad acres with jealous care. Mrs. Fickle was a handsome widow with excellent family connections and little of this world's goods. There had been no word of evil spoken of either, but when Mr. Ghere proposed marriage to the stylish widow his relatives resented it in every way possible, and at one time actually succeeded in breaking off the match. Then it was that the prominent members and officials of the Presbyterian church took up the lady's cause, successfully arranged the match, and the wedding occurred late last summer. Everything moved along happily until voting-time, when Mr. Ghere discovered that the politics of his wife's son were notin accord with his own. The stepson was thereupon refused admission to the parenta home. This breach was followed by the denial of Mrs. Ghere to her own home, and denial of Mrs. Ghere to her own home, and she thereupon sent for her household effects and established a new home for herself and son. The defendant is a pioneer of Clinton county. The plaintiff asks for $10,000 ali-

Special to The Indianapolis News. SHELBYVILLE, March 20,-After charges drunkenness were filed against Marshal Don C. Bruce, some two months ago, he gave out that the saloons would have to obey the law and that the gambling rooms of the city must close. He has closed a "keno" game on East Washington, and several of the "crap" tables have been idle, but the quiet games of poker have been going A final settlement has been made of the right along. Shelbyville has a screen nance, which requires an unobstructed view into all parts of the saloons. It has never been enforced, and last night as the people were coming from church they heard the clink of glasses and laughter issuing from more than one saloon. Bruce's trial on the charges preferred comes up in a few days.

A Discouraged Office-Seeker Dies. [Special to The Indianapolis News.] EDINBURG, March 20 .- E. K. Hosford formerly postmaster at this place under Cleveland's administration, died at his home in this city yesterday morning, after a short illness of heart trouble. Mr. Hosford had been trying to get the position as postmaster again, but the President's announcement that he would not employ any former occupant of office disappointed him so greatly that it brought on the illness of which he died. He was one of Edinburg's oldest citizens, and formerly one of her wealthiest. Some years ago he lost his fortune in a bad business investment.

Third Member Dying, [Special to The Indianapolis News.]

Madison, March 20 .- Joseph Ross, a member of the ill-fated family, the mother and daughter of which died during the past week of arsenic poisoning, was summoned by telegram to Anderson to-day, his brother James being in a dying condition. James went to Madison when his sister died, and was poisoned himself, together with other members of the family.

Mr. Boldt sued for divorce and cus ody of his children, which was granted during the recent term of court. Scarcely had the decree been entered of record before Boldt and his former wife remarried. During the past week Ellis returned to Covington and effected a reconciliation with his family. He claims that Boldt forced him to clope with Mrs. Boldt, and that Boldt furnished Mrs. Boldt with $200, with which to defray expenses, and that Boldt visited Bloomington, both before and after the

A feud between Sandy Jewiss and Frank Hammersher, of Connersville, dated back two years, when Jewiss assisted the police in placing Hammersher under arrest. Saturday night the men met in "Shirky" Snyder's saloon and a personal collision was narrowly avoided Hammersher was accompanied by Jack Lewis and others, and after leaving the saloon they lay in waiting for Jewiss, who was on his way home. The fight opened with a pistol shot and the throwing of a bowlder, and Jewiss was seized by Hammersher and Lewis, the latter pushing him through a window. While strug-gling with Lewis, Jewiss drew his revolver and fired over his shoulder at Hammersher, the bullet striking the latter in the head. He then fired at Lewis, striking him in the mouth and inflicting an ugly wound. Hammersher was removed to a hotel, where he lived but a few minutes. Jewiss surrendered to the Last Wednesday evening he preached a wonderfully eloquent sermon his theme "Sanctification" and sermon, his theme, "Sanctification," and while the congregation regarded it as one of the best and brightest he had ever delivered, many of the parishioners noticed that Mrs. Hathaway cried from the beginning to the end of the sermon, and seemed almost heart-broken. The denoument came last Saturday in the removal of Mr. Hathaway to the San-itarium at ( lege Hill, O. He had broken down mentally and physically. His hobby is sanctification, and he can speak and think of nothing else. There is hope that in rest and diverting his mind from religious topics, a re-covery may follow. It is recalled that his father was insane at one time due to overwork, and that an uncle was similarly troubled. Both recovered under careful treat

Alexander Johnson, secretary of the State Board of Charities, in his annual published report has this to say about Marion county's poor farm:

There are no important changes to note since last year's report. The house was found quite clean and not overcrowded. Repairs to plaster are needed; a condition of broken plaster seems to be chronic in some parts of the house. The number of insane men has increased, and the fourth-story ward is again being used. This ward ought to be most emphatically condemned and permanently closed. If the State provision for the insane is not increased, it will be necessary for Marion county to provide proper accommodations for the insane. In the sick and insane wards fairly good bath - tubs are provided, but the bathing facilities for the general inmates are very defective, the inmates using the stationary wash tubs in the laundry. A set of good tath-tubs, or of spray baths, which are equally as good and much cheaper, should be provided in a room set apart for the purpose. This could be fitted up at comparatively little expense in the old boiler-house, now unused.

The discipline of this institution is not, and has not been of recent years, at all satisfactory. The inmates come and go too much as they please. On the day of the last visit a male inmate returned from his fourth trip to the city inside eight days, each time without leave-of-absence, and after being positively forbuided to go.

The lack of sitting-room accommodation, pointed out in previous reports, continues, and is a hindrance arises from the fact that the superintendent has not sufficient control over the help. No institution can be properly managed unless the head be so in fact, as well as in name. The superintendent should be authorized to discipline. Perhaps the worst hindrance arises from the fact that the superintendent has not sufficient control over the help. No institution can be properly managed unless the head be so in fact, as well as in name. The superintendent should be improved, but the above are now the Contractor Sheehan's Fine. Timothy Sheehan, a contractor, was fined Friday for blockeding a street. He did not have the money with him to pay the fine and when Baliff Schwab was about to lock him up City Prosecutor Bell remarked that it was not necessary, as Mr. Sheehan would appear Saturday and pay the money. The contractor evidently forgot about it, for he did not appear, and last evening two officers went after him. He then paid the line.

STORIES OF THE EXPLOITS OF ROBBERS EXAGGERATED.

Brigands Old and New-The Brigands of Sardinia-No Excuse of Political Pretext - Power and Influence.

FLORENCE, March 3.—The recent sentence of eleven bandits in Sicily has been signal-fixed to the world at large by the papers, both Italian and foreign, as indicating an increase in the brigandage that afflicts some of the Italian provinces. As usual, in such cases, the strictures were exaggerated and demand for remedy was loud. Much good advice was then tendered to the govern-ment with that special unerring in-fallibility which betrays an absolute ce of the matter in question. The general demand was for energetic intervention and a consequent increase of police officials and carabineri.

If police officials and carabineri were true remedy for a social evil, there would not be such a thing as social science. It would be quite enough to divide populations into two great factions; the duty of the first being to manacle the second. Unappily for the worshipers of the so-called energetic measures, in reality a social evil must be cured according to science, and this cure is a complicated affair, which requires time and constant attention. To note the symptoms is only a part of the cure, and not the cure in itself. Let us examine the origin of brigandage in Italy, its development, the mathematical lines that rule it, and the means requisite for its suppreshirst of all there is no such thing as an Italian brigandage; there is a regional one in that section of the kingdom which is an appropriate hotbed of such a local disease. This regional brigandage differs so greatly according to districts that it may be said there is hardly a connecting link among them.

OLD TIMES AND NEW. North Italy has been free from any sort of brigandage for the past twenty years. The earing of all forest land, the network of railways and highways, the density of rural population, together with the increase in mentary instruction, have worked these good results upon the country and ruined all good prospects for a would-be brigand. Hence criminal instincts were forced to take more refined and less romantic form; they emigrated into towns where rogues of many varieties thrive as long as no one detects them. The days of Maino della Spinelta, of Mottino and Berra (this latter was hanged some thirty years ago in Turin) are past and gone forever. Petty larcenies of various kinds abound, and most unhappily frequent is the loss and theft of property along the Italian railway lines, the inferior officials upon which have a most unfontunate aptitude for picking locks, and they are permitted to do this with deplorable impunity, little or no attempt being nade on the part of the railway companies to bring their offenses home. This lockpleking is the modern form of highway robbery in Italy. Alas, how Dick Turpin must blush in his corner of Paradise—"These my successors? Oh, shame!"

Moreover in north and central Italy public offenders find it relatively easier to es-Spinelta, of Mottino and Berra (this latter noreover in norm and central ratify public offenders find it relatively easier to escape abroad. The Alpine frontier is not only a convenience for the smuggling of goods, but also for voluntary exile.

But as soon as we reach geographically the thicket-covered Maremma and the Roman Campagna the question changes. Population to the source wile degreeses ignonlation to the square mile decreases, ignorance prevails, seaports are scarcely frequented by steamers; therefore, any man who in a village brawl, or who for a love-affair has struck a knife into a fellow-villager, or shot a rival from behind a fence, resorts to the weds for abelter where he resorts to the woods for shelter, where he will drag on a curious sort of existence, a hunted-animal life, generally resorting to his rifle only for self-defense in fighting against the carabineri or in that other form of self-defense, which consists in shooting down pitilessly some man who has betrayed his hiding-place to the police authorities. These bushrangers seldom disturb a escific traveler; sometimes they light heir pipe at the cigar of sportsman; they get food rom the peasantry, to whom, if they think convenient, they even do a good turn. ommitted by them. At most they exact some paltry sum of money from the bailing of a rich land owner when they want a little cash. On the whole it would be wise to leave them undisturbed, as putting into the balance the cost of prosecution and the advantage of their capture, the former is a much more costly affair. Of the type of the above kind of brigand, are the most famous pair, Tiburzi and Ansaini, the former of whom was killed by the mounted police some time ago. Generally speaking the usual end of the average Marenma bandito is a shot from the rifle of a carabinere.

BRIGANDAGE ON SARDINIA. the seldem hears of any useless, cruel deed

BRIGANDAGE ON SARDINIA. The island of Sardinia has a brigandage similar to that of the Maremma. The vindictive Sardinian, takes to the woods like his Corsican cousin, in consequence of a family feud that has brought about some blood spilling. A Sardinian bandito is by no means necessarily a bad man. Sometimes he is a deservedly popular character among his fellow countrymen, who are quite ready to screen him from the police authorities. It is more likely than not that he shoots his first man in obedience to local customs, in accordance with an unwritten civilization refuses to recognize. He will go on shooting if they bunt him down; he will keep inoffensive if left undisturbed. Some old banditi enjoy much respect and sympathy. but stringent local law that our more refin Now let us cross the old frontier between will keep inoffensive if left undisturbed. Some old banditi enjoy much respect and sympathy.

Now let us cross the old frontier between the Neapolitan kingdom and the former States of the Church. From here to the Straits of Messina a vigorous brigandage raged during ten years, that is, from 1800 to 1870. It took the appearance of a political movement in favor of the Bourbon dynasty. Indeed, it was a sort of plebeian rural Vendee. The Halian army was obliged to keep the field against well-armed bands, sometimes numbering many nundreds of horsemen. Chiarone Crocks Donatello, Ninco Nanco and such capi-banda (leaders) were not destitute of strategy and skill. Some other chiefs, like the two brothers, Giona and Cipriano la Gala, were noted chiefly for extraordinary cruelty. As yet no history of the political brigandage of that period has been written. It would be a valuable and interesting work, revealing many curious incidents. In Malta and in Rome were the head centers of the standing committees, who were active in directing the bloody work of the bands and in furnishing their leaders with valuable information, excellent riles, accourtements and ammunition. The numb had hard work to do, and often they had to be pittless. Court-martials and eriminal courts were quick in judging, and prompt in shooting or hanging. Those toreigners who clamor for the restitution of the temporal power to the Pope must surely ignore that it was above all the vicar of Christ who countenanced many of the common assassins like Cipriano la Gala and gave them shelter within the frentiers of his state. The Italians' relentiess desire to take possession of Rome was the result of sheer necessity; only thus could they insure tranquility to the unhappy inhabitants of the south. Few people know that life and property in those parts were as insecure between 1861 and 1870 as in medeval times. This terrible state of affairs ceased suddenly with the occupation of Rome; and the lew remnants of the old bande were easily captured and sent to penal servi

BRIGANDS AND POLITICS.

Now Sicilian brigandage (or better stil' malandrinaggio) has not even the paltry excuse of political pretext. Never since 1800 have the Bourbons had partisans among the Sicillans, nor is the local clergy at all intransigent. The bande muster a very limited number of men actually composing them. They recruit, so to speak, occasionally among the rural population, and are headed by vulgar assassins, and they are noted for their crass ignorance. Sicily never enjoyed a good government. She passed from the supinely tyrannical rule of the Bourbons to the stern command of men sent to the island from north Italy as to a place of exile. No link of sympathy united the jovial Lombard, the bold and slow Piedmontese, the wily and quick Tuscan officials with the reserved and resentful Sicilian. How could the rulers understand the ruled? Even the wide difference in the patriot. at all intransigent. The bande muster a very limited number of men actually composing them. They recruit, so to speak, occasionally among the rural population, and are headed by vulgar assassins, and robbers escaped from prisons, and they are noted for their crass ignorance. Sicily never enjoyed a good government. She passed from the supinely tyrannical rule of the Bourbons to the stern command of men sent to the island from north Italy as to a place of exile. No link of sympathy united the jovial Lombard, the bold and slow Piedmontese, the wily and quick Tuscan officials with the reserved and resentful Sicilian. How could the rulers understand the ruled? Even the wide difference in the patriot proved an obstacle to good administration. The Sicilian soil is divided into large feudi; the small landed proprietor who is the backbone of the northern population does backbone of the northern population does not exist in the beautiful island. Most of the big lords are absentees and prefer town to country life; many reside, on the con-thent.

Thus the rural districts are left entirely in the hands of inefficient state officials and of local elements which rule at will the weaker section of their brethren. The amount of petty tyranny exercised by the account of the property of the weak is shealy taken. in the hards of inefficient state officials and of local elements which rule at will the weaker section of their brethren. thirst for revenge. It this abnormal state of things, any bold character may assume the role of arbiter of power, and at the same time that of redresser of wrongs. This explains the unbounded popularity of such brigands as Antonio Leone, who found accomplices in every village of the province of Palermo, whom no one durst betray, who could walk in the capital and take his ice at the swellest cafe of the city and enjoy the performance at the opera-house, even when King Humbert (then crown prince) was present. This Antonio Leone, who succumbed in fair fight with the carabinerei, was the bloody flower of a bad tree grown naturally on the Sicilian soil. In order that a handful of men should be able to exert such power over their country-men, they must have much personal energy; but even that is not enough. They must be at once the masters and the slaves of the populace. Such is always the case with the sicilian brigand. His courage, cunning and want of scruple single him out from among his fellow-villagers, who respect him accordingly. For these qualities they become his slaves. But he also wants shelter, help, information and appropriate the property of the second state of the second state. information and ammunition; there he is their slave. Around him a net of interest is woven by the deft hand of the Mafia. ABOUT THE MAFIA.

Now, no one can understand the true nature of Sicilian brigandism if the Mafia is ignored. The Mafia is an institution peculiar to the island of Sicily, and which the Sicilian residents in New Orleans tried to plant on American soil. As is well known the attempt resulted in the lynching of many persons. The Mafinsi are the adepts of the society, which is secret. Their aim consists in overawing all legal or moral power in order to annihilate them. Whoever resists or attempts to resist the will of the Mafia falls a victim to it. All means, however foul, are considered fair, provided they insure final victory. The Mafia recruits its votaries among all classes; even gentlemen of exquisite manners and noble blood are known to belong to the association. Many a bloody deed committed in Sicily is worked up by the Mafia, for brigandism is but one of its many tools. It is the Mafia that provides the rural brigand with the valuable information shout the desired victim; it is the brigand with the valuable information about the designed victin; it is the Mafia that instructs the highwayman concerning the sum of money to be demanded for the release of the captured traveler; the Mafia that provides the means for the convenient payment. The whole system is so peculiarly local that any foreigner, or, indeed, any mainland Italian, may walk undisturbed through the length and breadth of Sicily without meeting the least accident; because being foreigners the Mafia ignores them, as it has not the needful information regarding their financial means; and, accordingly, can not fix on the needful sum for ransom.

But such is not the case with a man belonging to the native gentry. The Mafinsi knows to a franc what sum his family can knows to a frame what sum his family can raise in less than a week for his release; they know the exact measure of affection they bear to this sequestered member. This explains the fact that no Sicilian brigand ever caught a foreigner (Mr. Rose, although an English subject, is constantly at Palermo, where he is in business) or a continental Italian. Such captures would be useless. The Mafia is the head, the brigand is the hand. An anecdote will illustrate the link between Mafia and brigandage.

THE CAPTURE OF A DUKE. Some few years ago Duke Notarbartolo de S. Giovanni, director of the bank of Sicily, was captured a few miles from Palermo and brought to a grotto in the mountains hard by. As customary in such cases, a heavy sum was fixed for his ransom, and death threatened if not paid within a certain time. After his release the Duchess Notarbartolo related at a friend's bouse how her husband had been treated during his durof respect, but that the polite banditi chieftain begged him to order for his meals whatever he desired. It sounded strange indeed to hear that the Duke was able in this mountain cave to eat his customary ice after dinner as in his own home. The chieftain dinner as in his own home. The chieftain was talkative and complained of hard times and of depression in the trade. He gave that as a reason for the exorbitant sum demanded, adding with a sad smile that very little of that money came to him and his companions: their town friends sold the commodities of life at exorbitant prices to the poor brigands.

From what has been said above concerning brigandage in Italy, the reader may draw the following conclusion: That if brigandage is strong, it is so because it is aided and abetted, by a section of the people.

ble and breeds as a natural consequence a towns, gambling gayly at the clubs and courting government favor.

Almost every one at Palermo is aware of this. If you speak of it, they reply Mahl with a shrug of the shoulders, this supine Italian interjection, which is a compound of buts and ifs. This filertia prevents many buts and ifs. This inertia prevents many good measures from being put on foot. And the best would be the multiplication of rural schools. Ignorance has too much sway among the Sicilian plebs, that is destitute of any ethical principle, although steeped in all the superstitious practices of Romanism. In the uncultured brain of a Palermo plebeian Santa Rosalia is far superior to Almighty God. Santa Rosalia and the Madonna ("Maria beida matre" anglice, Mary, beautiful mether) have merely taken the place of the Hellenic Aphrodite Eryx and of the Carthagenian Mylitta. Only radical reform in public ed-Mylitta. Only radical reform in public education and justice administered with a with a no special regard to class, will, with the help no special regard to class, will, with the help of time, cancel the bloody stain of brigandage from that great and fertile island. Violent measures will not produce any beneficial effect. Meantime, however, the tourist who would visit Sicily need not be debarred from so doing by fear of brigands. They will not touch him. He does not fall under the category of the bandit's victime. the category of the bandit's victi child, his breast is adorned with as many decorations as that of a veteran, among them being a magnificent star given him by the Shah of Persia.

The boy's technique is marvelous, and while his fingers can hardly span an octave, he plays the most complicated compositions with an ease and grace which put to shame with an ease and grace which put to shame many rivals, who, in point of years, could easily be his fathers. His performance is free from the taint of mechanical drill, and more like an inspiration of his own, with his fingers guided by a supernatural power. He is not a piano gymnast, but a souiful, powerful player, who interprets such masters as Bach, Mendelssohn, Chopin and Liszt with wonderful individuality. Even as a composer this wonderful child has achieved renown, although his works display an imitative leaning toward great prototypes, particularly his countryman, Chopin.

Unemployed of Chicago.

Isaac Trumbo a Western mine-owner, who was in Chicago recently, isaid yesterday: "Chicago is overrun with idle men and women, some of whom are starying to death. The prospect of employment—that the World's Fair would prove to be an Eldorado for those seeking employment—has drawn thousands of single and married men to that city. They had very little money, which they soon spent, and now they are suffering."

Too Common. [Pittsburg Dispatch.]

"You surprise me," said Uncle Sam.
"Why should you do that?" "Because they seem to have been adopted by every prize-fighter on earth,"

SICAL STUDIES AT ATHENS.

Accomplishments in the Way of Historical Research-Dr. Dorpfeld's Lectures-Advantages.

ATHENS, Greece, March 5.—The Amer-can School of Classical Studies is one of several educational institutions here main-tained by foreigners. It is under the control of the American Archæological Insti-tute. A French school has been in operation here for forty years, the German sch for nineteen years, while the American school is only eleven years old. In those years, however, it has collected a large and useful library, has invested $30,000 in a building at the foot of Mt. Lycabettus, and has accumulated an endowment fund of $50,000 which is yearly increased. Twelve American institutions are members of the American institutions are members of the American school, including Yale, Prince-ton, Harvard, University of Pennsylvania, Ann Arbor, Columbia and the University of Vermont. Each of these institutions contributes $250 a year. When the endow ment amounts to $100,000 the contributions will cease and the proceeds of that endowment will meet all necessary expenses. Both men and women are admitted. To be eligible they must have the degree of Bachelor of Arts. The French and German schools exclude women. The American school has two directors—permanent and annual. At present Frank B. Tarbell, of Harvard, is permanent director, and Mr. Wheeler, of the University of Vermont, is the annual director. Dr. Charles Waldstein, the American authority on Greek art, at present lecturer on artat Cambridge, England, has been the permanent director for several years and until this year. He is now a lecturer on art in this school during March.

The attendance is not large. This year there are twelve students. Nearly all of them are professors in American colleges. Princeton, University of Virginia, Bowdoin, Butler, Ann Arbor, Harvard, Catholic University at Washington, and, perhaps, others are represented this year.

THE SCHOOL'S ACCOMPLISHMENTS Young in years the American school has yet accomplished much that has been recognized as important. To the antiquarian the work outlined for schools of this class possesses uncommon interest. Being devoted to more than ordinary research it cultivates mind and body. Travel, physical labor and ample mental activity are combined. For instance, this school has excavated a great theater at Sieyon in Peloponnesus; on the island Assos it has found many valuable inscriptions; at Argos it has excavated the temple of Hera and found, among other things that have historie value, a beautiful head of Hera; in Euboes, at Eretria, a the ater has been excavated, and the tomb of Aristotle, as Dr. Waldstein thinks, has been discovered. The school has explored and carefully mapped the battlefield of Plataca. In Bocotia notable work has been Plataca. In Bocotia notable work has been done at Anthedore and Thisbe. At Icaria, the site of the Attic deme, or township, was found, together with many valuable remains. This is the greatest work of the school as the site was never known before. This year the school has devoted its time to the study of inscriptions of all periods from the stones, or squeezes (impressions of an inscription on paper), and to an examiexistence. At least they can get into the Greek spirit, which is one of the things coveted. Students are assigned upon request to certain work, and are expected to present a thesis upon it based upon orig-inal research. Members pursue their own studies at will—some choose inscriptions, studies at will—some choose inscriptions, some history, some vases, some architecture, some topography and some literature purely.

At the conclusion of the term as the chill winds become warmer, and the cholera and other warm weather diseases, always latent, begin to appear, the school prepares for the summer disintegration. Excursion parties are made up for interior points where celebrated ruins, not yet disturbed by the explorer's spade, are to be found. Early in April the Americans will turn homeward, stopping on the westward journey at Sicily and other islands, where accients and moderns have left their sign.

Ex-Senator Palmer's Dogs.

Ex-Senator Palmer, of Michigan, minister to Spain three years ago, and afterward president of the World's Fair Commission, had three dogs when he lived in Washington, and took them about with him almost constantly. One, a tiny terrier, was generally carried in his overcoat pocket, or inside his waistooat, from which place the small, black head was thrust out whenever a familiar voice was heard. The other two small, black head was thrust out whenever a familiar voice was heard. The other two dogs were King Charles spaniels, for whose exercise on rainy days, when a run out of doors was undesirable, there was rigged up in one of the rooms an ingenious walking-

"Grandmother, here's the minister," said her pet granddaughter in an awe-struck voice. Minister and parishioner talked very pleasantly until he touched on sanctification and foreordination, and, in a sudden burst of eloquence, said: "Madam, do you not believe in Him who took you out of the land of Egypt, out of the house of bondage?" "Egypt," shrieked the irate old lady, lifting her hands in pious horror; "the way lies are told about me! I have never been past the Falls of Schuylkill in all my life."

One of the privileges esteemed by the American school is the permission to attend Dr. Dorpield's lectures on all the great ruins in Athens. He is the shining light of the German school. The Doctor's name carries weight everywhere. Yesterday we listened to him for two hours and a half. Sometimes he lectures in the shadow of the Acropolis; sometimes in the xeavation of a buried theater, and we always have an object lesson as well as a lecture. It is an inspiration to the teachers to work here. We Americans are taking no little pride-a national characteristic-in the fact that we have the best library of all the schools here. It is daily proved that all of the facts relating to the antiquities have not been disclosed, and the pupils of the schools feel that instructors can now prepare themselves more satisfactorily in post-graduate work here than could formerly be done when these schools were not in

INTERESTS OF RAILROADS.

AN ASSOCIATION FORMED TO SUP-PORT RATES.

W. B. Shattuc To Be At the Head of It-Last Week's Car Movement-New Equipment Ordered-Personals and Paragraphs.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton & Dayton, Ohio & Mississippi, Vandalia and Big Four are part of an association formed Saturday for the purpose of keeping up the rates, particularly to St. Louis. This association has a chairman, or commissioner, whose salary will be $10,000, and the man selected for the place is W. B. Shattue, general pas-senger and ticket agent of the Ohio & Mississippi, who will resign from that corporation, with which he has been for many years, and is well and favorably known in railroad circles.

Some weeks ago THE News stated that when the consolidation of the Onio & Mississippi, and the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern was consummated, O. P. McCarty, general passenger agent of the latter road, would have charge of the passenger department of the consolidated lines. This appointment of Mr. Shattue makes Mr. McCarty's appointment come sooner than was anticipated. Mr. Me-Carty is an Indiana man, and is as well known in Indianapolis as if he lived here. He is a brother-in-law of A. B. Potts, of Woodruff Place. He began his railroad ca-

New Equipment Ordered. The Lake Erie & Western will build two new chair and sleeping cars. The Central of New Jersey has ordered fifteen ten-wheel, five eight-wheel, one compound eight-wheel and five switching engines.

The Boston & Maine has contracted for twelve moguls, twelve eight-wheel and six four-wheelswitching engines.

Last Week's Car Movement. The movement of cars last week shows a slight improvement, which would have been greater could the cars have been furnished. The record is as follows: New Monon, 526; Indianapolis, Decatur & Western, 404; Cincinnati, Hamilton & Indianapolis, 793; Lake Erie & Western, 682; Vandalia, 2,113; Pennsylvania lines: Indianapolis & Vincennes, 632; Louisville division, 931; Chicago division, 698; Indianapolis division. cago division, 638; Indianapolis division, 1,868; Peoria & Eastern: West district, 784; East district, 1,034; Big Four lines: Chicago division, 2,096; Cincinnati division, 2,237; St. Louis division, 1,656; Indianapolis division, 1,943; total, 18,583.

This organization does not represent any particular hotel, but under-takes to secure accommodations for visitors to the Fair. The railroad companies are interested in it.

Returned From the South. D. W. Janowitz, of the Northern Pacific, returned this morning from a trip through East Tennessee and Kentucky. He says he is surprised at the great prosperity of that country, which has opened up a new and enlarged field for his line. Mr. Janowitz says he will include those two States in his territory in the future.
